Copyright Concerns in Blackboard

Please be mindful of copyright issues when posting materials to your Blackboard course. The current accepted practice is limited to one chapter or no more than 10%, whichever is less of any publication.

Blackboard E-mail Problem:

The e-mail problem is still present, to resolve it: press the enter key twice at the end of your message

Problems with Blackboard?

If you are having problems with Blackboard, it is important to let me know by e-mail as soon as possible, along with any specifics you can give me, such as what you were doing, content management area, time of the problem, etc.

jyeager4@naz.edu

Currently over 500 courses are using Blackboard!

Course Cartridges

All major education publishers create pre-packaged content and course materials in the Blackboard Course Cartridge format to supplement their course textbooks. The course content may contain multimedia, assessments, Question Pools, and links to additional resources, such as interactive learning applications, that supplement the textbook reading. Cartridge materials can be customized once downloaded into a course site.

Student Concerns

- Older computers
- Low memory configurations
- Dial-up connections, not broadband

These issues translate into major problems for students trying to download large documents, and presentations from Blackboard to their personal computers. Please keep these in mind when uploading large files to Blackboard. Also note AOL users should change to another browser, i.e. Internet Explorer.

New to Blackboard? Need training? Send an e-mail to: training@naz.edu